Code of conduct

All BSA Certified Guardians will be expected to meet the code of conduct to which all members will be held to account.

- 1 The Guardian's first duty of care is to the individual international child studying in the UK. They represent the parent in this role, doing what a caring parent would do if they were in the UK.
- 2 The Guardian's role is to liaise between the parent, the child, the host family and the school.
- 3 The Guardian will foster an open relationship where needs and concerns can be communicated by all stakeholders.
- 4 The Guardian may recruit and train host families, matching them to the individual child and working to build up a good relationship between them.
- 5 The Guardian will ensure the child's safety and welfare at all times when they are in the UK but not at school.
- 6 The Guardian will have and follow appropriate safeguarding and safer recruitment policies; seek expert advice regarding any concerns and ensure compliance with all statutory duties including making appropriate referrals to the local authority.
- 7 The Guardian will maintain 24-hour emergency contact with the child when in the UK.
- 8 The Guardian will support the school by ensuring that the school's policies are upheld.

The BSA reserves the right to suspend Guardian certification pending the outcome of a thorough investigation.

Cost of BSA Certified Guardian Scheme

The BSA Certified Guardian Scheme costs £1,500 to register plus £250 membership in each subsequent year. Both charges are plus VAT if the guardian is in the UK or inside the EU and not VAT registered. This includes free attendance at two BSA events, discounted rates at all other BSA events, company listing on the BSA website, weekly newsletter, guide to boarding and termly member magazine, regular alerts and updates, free advice, e-introduction to our members and use of the official BSA Certified Guardian scheme logo.

The fee must be paid before free or discounted training is booked or the certificate and logo sent. There is no fee for proceeding from Provisional to Full membership. There will be checks made every three years in order to continue membership but there is no fee for this.

The BSA Certified Guardian scheme is designed to improve the working relationship between high quality educational guardians and BSA boarding schools.
